Good evening Victoria,

I have just checked the RBWM web site to see if there have been any developments.

I notice that Project Centre submitted an item on Dec 5 which suggests they are now happy with the situation once they receive a recalculation of runoff including the newly introduced swale and hydrobrake.

I also notice that this item is dated a day before our response submitted on Dec 6.

This means that none of what was included in our response can have been taken into account.

In fact although we have constantly raised the same reservations and questions there has never been any attempt by anyone to either supply proper answers to these questions or to challenge what we have said and-or explain why we are wrong.

I therefore feel that I must ask again if it is possible to have a meeting with Remsha of Project Centre so that we can have explained to us point-by-point from our last letter dated Dec 6 why we are wrong and why Project Centre feel that all is now hunky-dory.

Failing that perhaps we can expect a point-by-point response as a letter or document ?

Best wishes,

Rod
